HEIMTEXTIL in Frankfurt-Snow and Ice on Crutches and a Scooter!

Dick and I have attended the largest textile show in the world for over 30 years every January. Unfortunately, Dick broke his leg skiing 4 days before Christmas. Immobilized from hip to ankle, we forged onward.

This was one of those unforgettable adventures. I saw kindness and patience in my husband as wheelchair attendants banged his leg into doorways and elevators at airports. We need to be very grateful for the incredible ADA accommodations in the U.S. Three electric scooters were available for this show of 72,000 people. I had to drive it through two buildings to deliver it to Dick! That was amusing!

Life was slower, softer and more focused. People were helpful, even when they walked into the scooter. Because of the slower pace, we were able to spot new resources we may have run by in past years. Our summer line is on its way to fantastic!!!

Visit Dick's Heimtex blog when it is posted on Friday, January 29, (gentryconnects.com) to see other Heimtextil trends.
